

BEST PLACES TO WATCH THE SUNSET IN SAN DIEGO

Watching the sunset is a great way to appreciate nature, get out of the house, and improve your mental health. Here are some of the best spots in San Diego to watch the sunset!

MOUNT SOLEDAD LA JOLLA

An 823-foot high vantage point and veteran's memorial a mile from the beach in La Jolla. Here, viewers can gaze into the vast Pacific, as well as up the San Diego coastline. From this perspective, the sun sets slowly, allowing time to appreciate the surrounding plaques that honor service members.

WINDANSEA LA JOLLA

Windansea is a stunning place to watch the sunset right on the beach in La Jolla. The area is extremely picturesque and both a local and tourist favorite. It has lively tide pools, soft sand, and rugged cliffs. As the sun sets, viewers can watch surfers out in the ocean as the sky turns golden.

TORREY PINES STATE RESERVE DEL MAR & LA JOLLA

Gorgeous hikes and spectacular views make this reserve a beautiful place to watch the sunset. Viewers bring blankets to set up along the cliffs and watch the sun slowly disappear along the ocean's horizon. Others like to hike on trails like Razor Point and appreciate the sunset as they walk.
